THE INVITATION

Indiana University South Bend invites nominations and applications for the position of Chancellor. The Chancellor exercises broad responsibilities for all aspects of the academic, student, financial, development, and administrative dimensions of the campus, in coordination with university administration and the other Indiana University regional campuses. IU South Bend seeks an energetic, dynamic individual to lead and to engage its faculty, staff, students, and community in what promises to be an exciting era for the institution and its community.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SOUTH BEND: AN OVERVIEW

Indiana University South Bend is the largest regional campus of Indiana University, with more than 5,300 (excluding dual credit high school) students, about 250 full-time faculty members, and nearly 750 full and part-time employees. The 80-acre campus has excellent academic programs, an active student life, housing and a growing residential life program, important capital improvement projects underway, and strong community engagement. IU South Bend has been accredited by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools (HLC) since 1969.

IU South Bend offers nearly 100 degree programs including 23 graduate degrees. Academic centers of excellence have been established to focus on sustainability, local civil rights history, and the democratic process. The Louise E. Addicott and Yatish J. Joshi Performance Hall is recognized as a state-of-the art facility in the Ernestine M. Raclin School of the Arts. IU South Bend is also known for excellent programs in the AACSB accredited Judd Leighton School of Business and Economics, the NCATE (now CAEP) accredited School of Education, the Vera Z. Dwyer College of Health Sciences, and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Located 90 miles from Chicago, and 45 minutes from Lake Michigan’s freshwater beaches, IU South Bend is accessible to students, faculty and staff from around the world. IU South Bend has approximately 33,500 alumni.

Faculty members at IU South Bend have a passion for teaching, research and creative activity, and public service. Although many IU South Bend students commute to campus, 72% of the students are traditional age (less than 25 years old) and almost 72% take classes full-time. Nearly 400 students live in on-campus housing. Intercollegiate varsity athletics (NAIA) include men’s and women’s basketball, cross country, golf and tennis, along with men’s baseball and women’s volleyball and softball with women’s soccer in the process of approval. Recreational activities, two fraternities, three sororities, and more than 100 student clubs add to a growing student life atmosphere on campus. Many student clubs are focused on community engagement and fundraising for local charities.

As the only comprehensive public institution of higher education in North Central Indiana, IU South Bend is directly tied to the academic, economic, and cultural needs of the community. In this role, IU South Bend provides intellectual growth and career preparation for students within the liberal arts and sciences tradition, as well as an affordable college experience that includes individual attention and respect for diverse cultures and voices.

Recent capital projects include the $7 million 2017 renovation of the Administration Building and Vera Z. Dwyer Hall.
History
IU South Bend has been a separately accredited campus of Indiana University since 1969, however its history dates back to 1916 when Indiana University offered its first extension classes in South Bend. Today’s campus along the St. Joseph River is the result of land and building acquisitions by Indiana University beginning in 1961. The construction of the Franklin D. Schurz Library (1989), Wiekamp Hall (1996), Student Activities Center (2001), IU South Bend Elkhart Center (2007), River Crossing student housing (2008), and the Education and Arts Building (2013) have created the campus of today.

Faculty
IU South Bend is home to distinguished faculty who have a passion for teaching and scholarship. From the sciences to the arts, from business to the humanities, from nursing to education, IU South Bend features award-winning professors who achieve excellence in teaching, research, and creative and performance activities. Students have access to these professors in the classrooms, laboratories, and studios on campus.

Faculty have received honors and recognition by Indiana University, IU South Bend, and higher education or professional organizations for teaching excellence. Two IU South Bend professors were recognized in 2017 by Indiana University for outstanding teaching, research, and service to the community. Faculty are actively engaged in service to their professions, campus, and community.

While teaching is a primary focus of the IU South Bend Campus, faculty at IU South Bend are engaged in significant research, student-faculty interaction, creative activity, and value diversity and inclusivity, a global perspective and collaboration in life-long learning. Faculty research ranges from the study for the search for dark matter to analyzing the psychology of prayer. Over the last five years faculty have received NSF and NEA research grants. Faculty members are active in professional societies, present at annual meetings and conferences nationally and internationally, and publish in refereed and juried journals.

Tenured and tenure-track faculty have terminal degrees in their field of study. The minimum qualification for lecturers and clinical faculty is a master’s degree in their respective teaching area. Candidates for faculty positions are closely screened and evaluated so that the best match to IU South Bend’s needs and expectations can be secured.

Student Success
Student success is of the utmost importance. IU South Bend truly cares about supporting students as they pursue their dream of earning a college degree, hence, the establishment of the IU South Bend Academic Centers for Excellence (ACE) and the Titan Success Center (TSC) in 2015. ACE provides students the opportunity to develop skills and strategies necessary for academic success in a safe and inclusive environment including math tutoring and the writing center. TSC provides help with academic advising, course registration, schedule changes, and strategies on being successful in college.
University Center for Excellence in Teaching
The University Center for Excellence in Teaching (UCET) supports teaching and learning on the IU South Bend campus. UCET’s mission is to enhance faculty development and student learning through various programs and support systems such as workshops and consultations on pedagogy and practice, technology integration, emerging educational technologies, orientation materials for new faculty, conference funding, mentoring programs, and assistance with portfolio development. For more information go to https://www.IU SouthBend.edu/ucet/index.php.

Center for Excellence in Research and Scholarship
The Center for Excellence in Research and Scholarship (CERES) mission is to advance and facilitate a culture of research and scholarship from the senior faculty to undergraduate students at IU South Bend, and to exhibit the opportunities of diverse research and scholarship to the IU South Bend region. In the fall of 2017, CERES was approved and serves as a complementary counterpart to UCET.

Faculty Academy on Excellence in Teaching
IU South Bend participates in the Faculty Academy on Excellence in Teaching (FACET) program that was established as an Indiana University Presidential Initiative in 1989 to promote and sustain teaching excellence. Today, FACET numbers over 660 full-time faculty members, chosen through an annual campus and statewide peer review process. Each year approximately 20-25 candidates from across the Indiana University campuses and representing a wide range of academic disciplines are selected as new members. Throughout the year, FACET members are involved in a range of activities at the campus, university, and national level, promoting inquiry and engagement in teaching and learning. For more information go to https://facet.iu.edu/.

Distance Education
IU South Bend offers a growing distance education program. Over 400 sections of fully online courses are offered along with approximately over two dozen hybrid courses. IU South Bend is an active participant in IU Online, which offers collaborative degrees online involving faculty and students from across the IU regional campuses. For more information go to https://www.IU SouthBend.edu/distance-learning/index.php.

Purdue University Polytechnic
IU South Bend hosts Purdue Polytechnic on campus. Approximately 150 students are enrolled in programs in Electrical Engineering Technology, Engineering Technology, Industrial Technology, Mechanical Engineering Technology, Robotics Engineering Technology and Organizational Leadership.
INDIANA UNIVERSITY SOUTH BEND MISSION STATEMENT

Indiana University South Bend is the comprehensive undergraduate and postgraduate campus that serves North Central Indiana and is a regional campus of Indiana University. The campus values excellence in teaching, student-faculty interaction, research and creative activity, diversity and inclusivity, a global perspective, and collaboration in life-long learning. IU South Bend develops engaged citizens prepared to build strong communities.

Approved by the Indiana University Board of Trustees on February 19, 2010

INSTITUTIONAL STRENGTHS

According to a 2012 study by Tripp Umbach, IU South Bend’s economic impact was $141.8 million annually. Of that total, $68.5 million was in direct impact and $73.3 million was indirect and induced impact. The study also showed that the total employment impact of IU South Bend is 1,723 jobs (864 direct jobs and 859 indirect and induced jobs). According to the report IU South Bend generates $7.4 million per year in state and local tax revenue. The study also showed that IU South Bend faculty, staff and students contribute more than $9.3 million annually in charitable donations and volunteer service.

IU South Bend’s Center for a Sustainable Future has established itself as the leading resource in the area for information and educational outreach on sustainability. In addition, the Center staff provides speakers, presentations, and day-long workshops on sustainability to community businesses and organizations.

The IU South Bend Civil Rights Heritage Center at the Natatorium is dedicated to collecting and recording the civil rights history of Northern Indiana and Michiana. In a partnership with the City of South Bend, the South Bend Heritage Foundation, and local benefactors, the Natatorium is now a center of community outreach. Built in 1922 and now fully restored, the Natatorium serves as an educational resource and remains a powerful symbol of the civil rights movement in South Bend.

The IU South Bend American Democracy Project (ADP) actively engages the campus and the community in civic and political discussions and activities.

In 2017 IU South Bend celebrated a special Jubilee year, recognizing the convergence of three important anniversaries: 100 years of classes being offered, 50 years of diplomas and 25 years of classes being offered through a unified School of the Arts.

Undergraduate research is a hallmark of IU South Bend. Faculty are engaged in research and welcome undergraduate participation. The SMART (Student-Mentor Academic Research Teams) program offers undergraduate students travel grants, expense grants, and summer research fellowships. Research opportunities are available for all levels of background and expertise and usually can be tailored to a students’ schedule. Students involved in research can gain experience in all aspects of research, from writing grant proposals, acquiring and analyzing data, and utilizing state-of-the-art techniques to presenting at local and national professional meetings. IU South Bend holds the proud distinction of a 2018 Goldwater Scholarship recipient (one of only seven in the state of Indiana) as well as 3 graduate research fellowships in 2014 from the National Science Foundation.
The Carnegie Engaged Campus Initiative is a new initiative promoting community engagement locally, nationally, and globally with students, staff and faculty working in collaboration with community partners. The campus is conducting data gathering activities, surveys, and other actions geared towards applying for the prestigious Carnegie Community Engagement Classification.

IU South Bend is committed to diversity through our Latino and Black Student Unions along with the Freedom Summer course which travels to civil right sites and the summer Leadership Academy which offers a bridge program on the civil rights movement. The campus also has a vibrant Women's and Gender Studies Program, offering a major and minor in interdisciplinary and intersectional feminist training, and all WGS majors do internships in the community, leading to a successful track-record of placing graduates in purposeful work. IU South Bend students developed and launched the Titans Feed Titans Food Pantry to serve those dealing with hunger in the community.

ENROLLMENT AND ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

IU South Bend offers programs on the main campus in South Bend, as well as at the Elkhart Center and online. While most of the 5,300 students are undergraduates, there is a significant graduate population of nearly 500 students.

In fall 2017 more than $44 million in financial aid was awarded. 77% of undergraduate students took classes full-time and 77% were 24 years old and younger. Nearly 62% of the undergraduate students were female and 25% were minorities. IU South Bend also serves about 150 international students each year.

Since 2007, the campus has seen a decrease in degree-seeking enrollments and credit hours respectively (18.9%, 3.5%). These decreases can partially be attributed to the State’s decrease in high-school graduates, fewer transfers from the Indiana two-year community college, reduction of international students, and returning student decline. The campus has implemented an aggressive enrollment-shaping program, seeking a better prepared entering class of first-generation college students, with the ultimate goal of improving graduation rates. Enrollment will be an important priority for the new chancellor.

Approximately 100 degree programs are offered through six colleges and schools: Ernestine M. Raclin School of the Arts, Judd Leighton School of Business and Economics, School of Education, Vera Z. Dwyer College of Health Sciences, the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and the School of Social Work. There are 23 graduate programs. In addition, IU South Bend offers graduate students the opportunity to collaborate with other IU programs.

The Honors Program at IU South Bend provides an intellectually enriched curriculum for highly-motivated students. Students can also gain valuable experience through research opportunities, service-learning, internships, and study abroad programs.
IU South Bend features five centers of academic excellence – the Center for a Sustainable Future, the Civil Rights Heritage Center, Center for Experiential Education, Center for Economic Education, and University Center for Excellence in Teaching and the Academic Centers for Excellence. The Judd Leighton School of Business and Economics hosts the Bureau of Business and Economic Research, the CTS Center for Experiential Education and the Center for Economic Education.

IU South Bend has a growing study abroad program. In the past ten years, the number of programs and student travelers has more than doubled. The programs include faculty and students throughout the campus from a variety of schools and departments. In 2018 faculty have led eleven international study abroad trips, with over 130 students traveling to Canada, Mexico, Asia, Central America, and Europe.

ACCREDITATION

Indiana University South Bend has been continuously accredited by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools (HLC) since 1969. The campus received continued accreditation by the HLC in the spring of 2017-2018. The HLC’s next comprehensive evaluation of IU South Bend will take place in 2027-2028.

ADDITIONAL ACCREDITATIONS

The Judd Leighton School of Business and Economics is accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB International). The School of Education and its counseling programs are nationally accredited through National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP) as well as the Council for Accreditation of Educator Preparation (CAEP). The baccalaureate and graduate degree nursing education programs are accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE) and the Indiana State Board of Nursing. The Master of Social Work program is fully accredited by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE). The radiography program is accredited by the Joint Review Committee on Education in Radiologic Technology (JRCERT). The programs in Dental Education are fully accredited by the American Dental Association Commission on Dental Accreditation (CODA). Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry: The Bachelor of Science degree in chemistry is accredited by the American Chemical Society (ACS). Master of Public Affairs: The Master of Public Affairs is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA). The Ernestine M. Raclin School of the Arts is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music (NASM).
GOVERNANCE

The IU South Bend campus values its tradition of shared governance. The chancellor and other key administrators work closely with faculty to ensure the governance system operates effectively. The new chancellor will foster a climate in which discussion is inclusive and reasoned, but decisions are made without undue delay.

IU South Bend is a regional campus of Indiana University. Indiana University is not a system, but a single university with seven campuses (of which one is shared with Purdue University (IUPUI)). Indiana University is led by one president, Michael McRobbie, and a single Board of Trustees. Academic degrees are granted by the university, and the university establishes fundamental policies across all functional areas. In several areas, especially academics, Indiana University has traditionally provided individual campuses with considerable flexibility in applying university policy to the regional campuses’ mission. Indeed, responsiveness to mission and region is a core strength of the Indiana University regional campuses.

In 2010, President McRobbie re-instituted the office of vice president (now executive vice president) for the regional campuses as a way to bring prominence and coherence to the shared mission of those campuses. The regional campus chancellors report to the Executive Vice President of University Academic Affairs, John S. Applegate. The shared vision, mission, and strategic plan for the regional campuses is detailed in the Blueprint for Student Attainment, the result of a year-long collaborative planning process begun in 2010: https://strategicplan.iu.edu/. IU South Bend administration and faculty have been at the forefront of the Blueprint and other collaborative efforts the strategic plan for IU South Bend https://www.iusb.edu/chancellor/_pdfs/strategic-plan.pdf.

FINANCES, FACILITIES, AND FUNDRAISING

The annual operating budget for IU South Bend is $81.2 million of which approximately 46% is derived from tuition and fees and the remaining 54% from state appropriations and other income.

The State of Indiana Commission for Higher Education adopted performance based funding in 2003 which has evolved over time to provide incentives to improve in specific metrics, which have included student completion milestones, number of graduates, and on-time graduates. Further information can be located at: https://www.in.gov/che/3148.htm.

Among the primary responsibilities of the new chancellor will be to assemble the resources necessary to attract and maintain a first-rate faculty, and to continue providing programs of high quality, and to allocate them in accordance with the mission of the campus, in consultation with individual units and the faculty. Strategic allocation of resources to foster growth is an important challenge for a new chancellor.
Additional Fundraising Information
IU South Bend has made dramatic progress in developing a strong fundraising and development unit in the last decade. In fact, as Indiana University approaches its 200th year, it is currently in an unprecedented IU-wide campaign known as For All: The Indiana University Bicentennial Campaign. In addition to celebrating all that has been accomplished in IU’s first 200 years, the campaign, which will conclude in June 2020, has a goal of raising $3 billion. Each IU campus has a specific campus goal. IU South Bend has a goal of $35 million with over $26 million raised in gifts and pledges as of June 2018. Meeting the IU South Bend philanthropic goal will be an important priority for the new chancellor.

Highlights for IU South Bend include two transformational gifts during the campaign. In 2014, IU South Bend received the largest single philanthropic donation in its history—$5.85 million. The gift from the Vera Z. Dwyer Charitable Trust was given in support of the College of Health Sciences. In recognition of the gift the college is named the Vera Z. Dwyer College of Health Sciences. Prior to this gift, in September 2012, it was announced that the IU South Bend School of Business and Economics would be named in honor of the late South Bend businessman, banker, civic leader, and philanthropist, Judd Leighton, in recognition of a gift of $4 million from the Judd Leighton Foundation.

Technology
Through Indiana University’s University Information Technology Services, IU South Bend provides up-to-date technology to all faculty, staff, and students. All faculty and staff computers are replaced every four years through life-cycle funding, as are the computers in the student computer labs. Likewise, all classroom technology in registrar controlled classrooms is life cycle funded. All campus classrooms have some level of technology. The current focus is to equip classrooms for collaborative and active learning situations.

Students and faculty can access a wide variety of software applications from the IT cloud based serve, IU Anyware, and from IU’s software distribution service, IUWare. Both services offer a wide variety of software packages at no charge. IU South Bend supports faculty professional development designed to facilitate teaching in a variety of learning environments, including online learning. By combining innovative practices with existing and emerging technologies, IU instructors can develop approaches ideal for a diverse range of students.

Facilities
IU South Bend is an urban campus located close to downtown South Bend. The main buildings on campus include: the recently renovated Administration Building with the first floor designated for student services, Wiekamp Hall, Student Activities Center, Franklin D. Schurz Library, Northside Hall, Vera Z. Dwyer Hall, Purdue Polytechnic Building, River Crossing Housing and the Education and Arts Building. In addition the Elkhart Center is undergoing repurposing for the new Health Science programs.
SOUTH BEND AND THE REGION

South Bend is situated in northern Indiana, and is less than a two-hour drive from Chicago and 45 minutes from Lake Michigan. The South Bend–Mishawaka Metropolitan Area has a population just over 320,000, and boasts educational opportunities, including six colleges and universities; excellent cultural events and museums (e.g., Morris Performing Arts Center, the The History Museum, the Studebaker National Museum); multiple parks and recreational opportunities (e.g., the Potawatomi Zoo and the East Race Waterway); and some of the best home values in the country (http://www.southbendin.gov/).

INDIANA UNIVERSITY: AN OVERVIEW

With seven campuses serving approximately 100,000 students, Indiana University is one of the nation’s oldest and largest state universities. It was founded in 1820, only four years after Indiana achieved statehood. More than 83% of Indiana’s population lives within 50 miles of one of the seven campuses.

The institution is governed by the Trustees of Indiana University, who are charged with policy and decision-making authority, granted by the Indiana General Assembly, to carry out the programs and missions of the University. The university is led by President Michael McRobbie and other university officers, with a chancellor on six of the campuses and a provost at the Bloomington campus.

In addition to the campus in South Bend, Indiana University is comprised of the following core campuses:

Indiana University Bloomington
Indiana University–Purdue University Indianapolis

And the following regional campuses:
Indiana University East (Richmond)
Indiana University Kokomo
Indiana University Northwest (Gary)
Indiana University Southeast (New Albany)

Indiana University also offers courses through facilities in Elkhart, and several other sites throughout the state. Indiana University operates year-round with two academic semesters and summer school programs of varied lengths, depending on the campus. In 2016-2017 more than 23,500 degrees were awarded throughout the university.

Indiana University has approximately 5,400 full-time faculty or lecturer-rank appointees and generates more than 1,200,000 credit hours. Approximately 71% of all students are Indiana residents. The total university budget for 2018-2019 is nearly $3.7 billion, coming from the Indiana General Assembly, student instructional fees, student housing and dining income, government and private gifts and grants, revenue from hospitals, and other income from sales and services. This budget includes over $2.1 billion for unrestricted funds, over $1 billion for restricted fund groups, and over $487 million for auxiliary and service fund groups. Indiana University has over 670,000 living alumni worldwide.
The Indiana University Foundation maximizes private support for Indiana University by fostering lifelong relationships with key stakeholders and providing advancement leadership and fundraising services for campuses and units across the University.

Indiana University prides itself on being open to serve the people of Indiana.

- The seven campuses offer more than 1,100 Indiana University degree programs.
- Current university-wide enrollment is approximately 100,000 students.
- Two out of every five undergraduates at public universities in Indiana are Indiana University students.
- Indiana University provides thousands of services for the people of Indiana.

Two-thirds of faculty members’ time is spent teaching, the other one-third in research and service activities. Of the nine Trustees, the Governor of the State appoints five and the alumni elect three. A full-time student, appointed by the Governor, fills the ninth slot for a two-year period.

The president is appointed by the trustees to be chief executive of the university. Michael A. McRobbie became Indiana University’s eighteenth president on July 1, 2007. Dr. McRobbie became Indiana University’s vice president for information technology in 1997, and he led the university to national leadership in that field. In May 2003, he took on additional responsibilities as vice president for research. Dr. McRobbie was appointed interim provost and vice president for academic affairs at Indiana University Bloomington in 2006.

More information about Indiana University may be found on its website: www.iu.edu.

POSITION REQUIREMENTS AND QUALIFICATIONS

The Chancellor is the Chief Executive Officer of Indiana University South Bend and reports to the Executive Vice President of University Academic Affairs at Indiana University. The Chancellor works closely with the Executive Vice President and other senior administration of Indiana University. On the South Bend campus, the Chancellor convenes a Cabinet, which includes the Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, the Vice Chancellor for Administration and Fiscal Affairs, the Vice Chancellor for University Advancement, the Vice Chancellor for Student Engagement and Success, and the campus Chief Information Officer. In addition to the IU South Bend Chancellor’s Cabinet, the Director of Affirmative Action and Campus Diversity also reports directly to the Chancellor under the current structure.

The Chancellor will lead IU South Bend in advancing its contributions to fulfilling the mission of Indiana University. In addition, the Chancellor will guide IU South Bend in its campus commitments to excellence in teaching and scholarship, student centeredness, and engaged citizenship. The Chancellor will provide strong leadership in achieving current goals and also establishing new and ambitious ones to move forward.
The new Chancellor will demonstrate:

- Deep understanding of and respect for academic values and the traditions of higher education, as well as the ability to grasp and manage the demands of the market and the new forces of technology that have an impact on all universities today.

- Capacity to articulate a broad vision for the IU South Bend campus within Indiana University and among the Indiana University regional campuses, which will allow the campus to leverage the strengths of the university and build on its unique strengths and position.

- Thorough understanding of the importance of strong enrollment management strategies in a highly competitive environment.

- Ability to build support and marshal resources for various initiatives and to achieve goals through appropriate engagement with the campus community.

- Ability to attract the external resources necessary not only in relation to the budget, but also to achieve a higher level of institutional success.

- Commitment to serving and advocating for students and to the establishment of a student centered atmosphere with a focus, on access, affordability and student success.

- Commitment to faculty and staff development.

- Commitment to athletic programs.

- A record of sensitivity to issues of diversity with a strong demonstrated commitment to affirmative action and equal opportunity.

- Familiarity with the complexities of leading a regional campus within a university, and the ability both to serve the needs of the campus and region, and to work collaboratively with faculty, students, community and the president and senior officers and with other regional campuses.

- Ability to connect with and collaborate with business and community leaders and understand regional relevance.

- Commitment to advancing the IU South Bend mission as an engaged campus, including articulating views and values that build partnerships and collaboration with local and regional entities in north central Indiana and southwestern Michigan.

- Ability to work effectively with legislative leaders.

- Ability to strengthen alumni relations and engage graduates.

- A transparent leadership and community style.

- Credentials and characteristics that will earn the respect of the academic community.
• Personal qualities including energy and creativity, leadership, integrity, selflessness, effective listener, negotiating skills, creative problem solver, the ability to be decisive and yet respectful of the deliberative process, patience, humor and trustworthiness.

Strong candidates will have a demonstrated record of leadership as an executive officer and have extensive experience with higher education, including a passion for student success. A deep knowledge and understanding of the academic mission is strongly preferred. Candidates should demonstrate strategic thinking and also possess outstanding interpersonal and communication skills, be collaborative and creative, and be able to articulate a vision to diverse audiences.

Traditionally, chancellors of Indiana University’s regional campuses have held earned terminal degrees and have demonstrated a record of teaching, research, and service meritorious of an appointment as a full professor at Indiana University.
